Fr. Higgins Publishes Theology Book

Father Thomas J. Higgins, S. J. has recently published a new Theology book. Its title is "Dogma For the Layman" and according to Father Higgins, the book presents "a summary of dogmatic theology for the benefit of the educated Catholic."

This new literary work is the result of Father Higgins' five years of labor. The first copy of the book, which was published in October of this year, was received by Father Higgins just last week. The book was written at the request of the Bruce Publishing Company, although the author did not intend to write it so soon.

23 Years Here

Father Higgins has been teaching Ethics to seniors at Loyola for the past twenty-three years. He holds the position as chairman of the Philosophy Department.

When asked whether the book would be used for classroom teaching, Father said that it "wasn't intended to be a textbook, but it could be used as such."

Father Higgins' time is constantly occupied with his teaching and writing. This latest book is the good Father's fifth publication!

Elections Set For Frosh

The Elections Committee of the Student Council headed by its chairman, Ed Slawski has announced that starting last Monday, October 23rd, petitions were made available for any Freshman seeking a Freshman Class office.

Petitions

Petitions must be filled out and returned to the Registrar's Office by 3 o'clock Tuesday, October 31st. Any member of the Class of '65 is able to file a petition; however, applicants are subject to an interview with the Dean of Studies and his subsequent approval.

Interviews

All interviews with Father Galvin concerning candidacy will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, November 8th and 9th. This is done so that the Dean will have available to him any deficiency reports on the students who have circulated petitions.

The actual campaign with posters and any other advertising means will begin on Thursday, November 9th, and last until Wednesday, November 22nd.

The election date is Wednesday, November 22nd at a time to be announced. The results will be announced at the Annual Loyola Nite. Any other information concerning Frosh elections will be published in the GREYHOUND.

Jesuit To Speak At Yearly Campus Event

On Thursday, November 2nd, at 3:00 P. M. Father Feodor Wilcock, S. J. will lecture in Xavier Lounge on the Eastern Rites and will treat particularly the Byzantine Rite of which he is a member. The lecture will be a preparation for the celebration of the Byzantine liturgy on the next day in the Students' Chapel during the time reserved for the monthly First Friday Mass. This will help to vary the Masses.

British Jesuit

A native of Great Britain, Father Wilcock was educated by the Jesuits at Stonyhurst, England. After his entrance into the Society of Jesus in 1924, he studied in Germany and Rome before he was ordained a priest of the Eastern Rite in 1934.

In 1936 he was sent to Poland and Czechoslovakia. Father Wilcock was interned by the Japanese in 1939. After liberation he spent a number of years in China.

From its official opening in 1951, he was the Superior of the Russian Center on the campus of Fordham University until he was assigned as Superior of the Russian Center in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Father Wilcock is currently on a brief visit and lecture tour in the United States and has consented to come to Loyola for the celebration of the Eastern Liturgy which has become an annual event on campus.

P. R. Dance

Pershing Rifle Company, G-15, will hold its annual Fall Ball tomorrow night, October 28, in the Student Union Building with the music of Feen Lula. The dance is open to all Pershing Rifle members, those aspiring to membership, and any other Advance corps cadets who wish to attend.

A company vote will be held on Friday, October 27, at 10 o'clock to determine this year's Pershing Rifle Queen who will be crowned during the intermission. At this dance pledge ribbons will also be conferred.

The orchestra, according to Captain Joe Martin, who is head of the Pershing Rifle Company at Evergreen, is very suitable for the occasion. The dance will be light and congenial, and all will enjoy it.

Group Plans Annapolis Trip

Tomorrow night in Annapolis, "The Brave Irishman," will be presented in the Key Auditorium of St. John's College at 8 p. m.

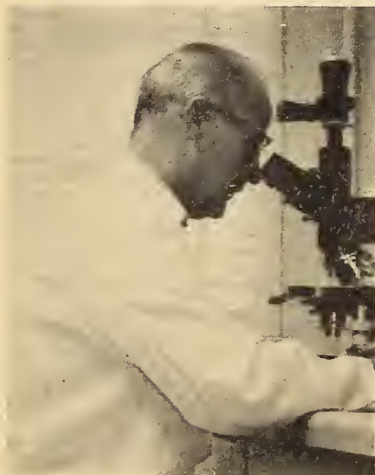

This will be the conclusion of the celebration of "October is Heritage Month in Historic Annapolis," which is sponsored each year by the Historic Annapolis Association. The theme for this year is "Entertainment of the Traveler."

Tomorrow's full program will include a guided tour of Annapolis's historic buildings from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. A colonial style dinner will be served in many of the present day Annapolis inns and hotels.

The price for the play is $2.00 per person; for the others, unknown.

Government Renews Grant For Fr. Burke's Research

Recently Father Joseph Burke, S. J. of the Loyola College Biology Department received a renewal of his grant from the National Institute of Mental Health to continue his work in psychopharmacology, which is the study of the treatment of mental disease with drugs.

Fr. Burke working in the lab.

conference in Washington, D. C. last Saturday, October 21. The conference was addressed by R. Sargent Shriver and several sub-directors of the Corps during the morning.

The original of $23,000 was given to Father Burke and Dr. Charles Wilbur, formerly of the Loyola College faculty, to pursue research in the physiological action of psychogenic agents. The ultimate purpose of this research is to find out whether mental diseases are caused by chemicals.

At Evergreen

The current grant is for $10,000, and will enable Father Burke to complete his research. Father has pursued much of his research here on the Evergreen campus. The rest of his research has been carried on during the summer at the Marine Biology Laboratory at Woods Hole, Cape Cod, Massachusetts.

Future Work

Much of Father Burke's future work will deal with the psych-chemical known as plysergic acid and how this acid affects the tissues of the body.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

That Poor, disillusioned Mary Jane Smith (we all met her in last week's editorial, remember?) certainly has the heartfelt sympathy of all Loyola sophomores as in one voice, choked with emotion, we ask, "Mary Jane, what have we done?!" Last week's editorial, one of the most lengthy to date, (a fact no doubt explained by the "very grave" matter with which it dealt) certainly did not seem in keeping with the high caliber of material we are used to reading in said editorials.

One thing is for sure--it was fortunate that the Freshmen Welcome Dance was held when it was. If it hadn't been, I doubt that our newsmen would have been able to put out an issue last week. They wouldn't have had anything to write about! At any rate, last week's issue was, in the words of countless readers, "pretty funny!"

Please remember sir(s) you can please all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time, but you can't please all of the people all of the time.

Thank You,
Charles J. Lancelotta
President, Class of '64

P.S. Many of our "critics" might enjoy reading "Time," October 20, 1961, pp. 54-56.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

First, allow us to inform you, that whereas last week's editorial, in your opinion, was possible only because of the dance; this week's editorial has been deleted in courtesy to your letter.

Secondly, dance material comprised 8.3% of last week's issue, 9.5% of the October 13th issue.

Thirdly, try counting; you will be surprised.

Finally, with regard to your last sentence, So What?

the Watchdog

John Baynes tells us that he is presently very concerned over the fact that the officers down at the Dell, won't give him anything to do at drill on Wednesday. We have decided to take up his cause by using some of the Logic which most of the Juniors are learning this year. Our silly-gism would be:

An idle mind is the devil's workshop!

And John Baynes has an idle mind. Therefore, the devil sure had a lot of working space!!!! Nes pas??

Nick Chesno, he of the curly blond locks, has been the subject of many of his classmates' jokes over the past year, but says that he doesn't mind a bit. "After all," says Nick, "I always do manage to keep a certain air about me." We agree with Nick, but still think it would be nice if he would take a shower!!!

Hot tip: The Watchdog advises all students who are currently holding U.S. bonds to sell. Reason: Joe Bowman has gotten a notice for an Army physical!

Some of the guys at the Yearbook have asked us to announce that last year's book may be picked up at any time. Judging from its size, we would not think that this would put too much strain on anyone's arm!!!!

Charlie Klotch just loaned some guy a couple of bucks and says that its immaterial that he ever gets his money back. The bird is really a little ole pigeon!!!!!!

Don't tell anybody, but Jim Clarke, is working on a new toothpaste, containing salt and pepper. He bills it as a product for people who want to brush during meals!!!!

Albie Brown says that Lee Caldwell has been running in high social circles lately. That doesn't surprise us, Al, he's been running in circles most of his life!!!!

Bird's Beat

The Bird is certainly happy to see so many more students taking advantage of this painless way to increase word power. The number of "Bird" watchers is growing everyday. Some of these watchers have come to the conclusion that by reading this daily column they may become literate even before they graduate.

Become an official "Bird" watcher. Next week the answers will not be published in the GREYHOUND, but they will be put on the Bird's posters the following Monday. To become an official "Bird" watcher take the quiz next week and write down the answers. The first three people who know the words and submit the correct answers to Bird on Friday will have their names put in this paper the following week.

Well, "Bird" watchers, here is this week's quiz. Just match the words in the first column to their synonyms; then check page 4 for the answers. If you were unable to get 100% correct this week read the daily words more carefully and maybe next week you will be able to become an official "Bird" watcher.

Not Really hindsight but ... Houndsight

This is a new series, designed to show the wit of previous Hounds: (The following is taken from the issue of the GREYHOUND of December 19, 1941 which shows the activity of a certain Benchley Society, to wit:)

The third meeting of the ever-growing Benchley Literary Society was held on Thursday, December 11th, in the oil pit of an abandoned filling station near Beaver Dam. The progress of the meeting was interrupted several times by muffled cries andappings on the wall. The source of these noises is as yet unidentified. It was moved by Mr. G. Ayd that the disturbance be ignored. The motion was carried by a vote of eleven to one, with only a Mr. Tracy dissenting. The serious business of the day was dispatched with the defeat of a resolution that the Society picket "en masse" an exhibit of fragipani blossoms, sponsored by the Edith Eisenreich Garden Club.

The piece de resistance of the meeting came in a paper given by Mr. Russell on "Peruvian Influences on Albanian Wallpaper Designs." After a short introductory description of Albanian and Peruvian fauna, featuring thumbnail sketches of King Zog and Chief Atahualpa, Mr. Russell launched into the heart of his paper, documenting his remarks at intervals with excerpts from "Zyptoviv," an Albanian quarterly. A more interesting essay has seldom been heard. Said Mr. Russell: "The Peruvian influences on this country cannot be too greatly underestimated." The Society cheered him to an echoll

After this, there were diverse literary discussions. Mr. Heying and Mr. Thaler became embroiled in a hotly contested argument over the relative merits of Henri Bergson and Edgar Guest respectively. They were finally brought to order by Mr. Kaltenbach, who reminded them that the talents of the great masters are never to be compared.

Mr. Helfrich recounted some of his more interesting experiences with a Peruvian family in Garden-ville, and Mr. Barrett told the anecdote about the Eskimo and the new typewriter. Then the meeting adjourned and the members filled in the time before tea by playing bezique. Mr. Crook, the heavy winner, carried away with him twenty-three match sticks and a "Democrat-for-Wilkie" button. Mr. Clarke, the guest moderator for the day, failed to attend, having sprained his ankle in a game of quoits.

TV Talk

(The following is an Editorial on "Television" taken from the Dec. 4, 1931 issue of the Greyhound, to wit:)

The Inspiration for this bit of prose is the livid advertising heralding the approach of television. The awful aspect of a television apparatus in every home gives rise to those sudden chills of fear that usually play hide and seek up and down the spine of anyone.

The radio came just as the Television gives evidence of coming, as a great discovery and a boon of civilized progress. It came in the guise of a blessing, to be sure, and when we say guise we mean disguise. As a blessing we commend it to the master of the nether regions to bless those he rules.

The thought of what television might do brings cold sweat to the brow.

Maybe Mencken's singing remarks on the intelligence of America had more logic and rationality than the nation as a whole gave them credit for.

"By 1980, the downfall of imperialism and the triumph of socialism on a world scale are inevitable." With these words, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev promised the citizens of the Soviet Union that the Communist party would wipe out all want in Russia and would give them the highest standard of living in the world. This tremendous goal, designed as a challenge to the West, is to be accomplished according to Mr. Khrushchev chiefly by Soviet industry outproducing its counterpart in the United States in every major field.

Most Western observers were quick and justified in banding Mr. K's speech simply "pie in the sky." There is no question about the fact that in order for the Soviet Union to overtake the U.S. in industrial production, the latter would have to remain idle. Even then, the task would be difficult. It would seem, therefore, that the citizens of the West, especially those of the United States, should have no fears and should feel no apparent danger. This is exactly what Mr. K would like to see develop. He realizes, despite his convincing speeches, that his system of government cannot overtake its arch-rival, the U.S., by industrial means alone. In order for Russia to move ahead, the people must be instilled with spirit; they must be thoroughly indoctrinated from the beginning of their lives as to the goal of Communism, and they have been. Khrushchev has succeeded in his program to fill the Russian people, especially the youth, with a purpose, and the spirit to achieve the dreams of that purpose. He now counts heavily on the failure of the American people to have an equally strong purpose and conviction.

It is up to the youth of America to prove Mr. Khrushchev wrong. During our life time, this country will be subjected to the greatest challenge ever put before it. Do not believe for a moment that it will remain supreme automatically, or by industrial production only!

There must be spirit and purpose in the people; they must understand the goals of the country as well as their own goals; they must shake off apathy and indifference. Only then will the American way of life be perpetuated against all challenges!

Today, many believe that a good agent is more important ingredient in success than talent. The image which performers project often depends more on background music than on their individual performance. With the advent of echo chambers and hi-fidelity-sterophonic recordings, there are so many tricks that it is difficult to distinguish real ability. The only true test of the artist's verve is the personal performance.

On Wednesday, October 18, 1961, at McAuley Auditorium of Mt. St. Agnes College, Ferrante and Teicher displayed their wares for the assembled music lovers. As is the case with all really talented performances, there was electricity in the air. These Keyboard Kings played for and pleased the packed house.

Crowd Pleasers

These twin piano stylists have made several tape recordings in recent months, especially "Theme from the Apartment" and the "Theme from Exodus." Aside from their recording career, they have been pleasing audiences for some time with a repertoire that varies from serious to comic, from long-hair to crew-cut. The program was varied and not restricted to merely popular music, which was consigned to a relatively small place. "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" and "Rhapsody in Blue" were two highlights of the evening along with other worthwhile and well-known numbers.

Their selection was played with deftness and style which was very refreshing. They are artists and conveyed that fact to the audience with a naturalness that was noteworthy. Years of practice and true talent always shine their brightest before a group of onlookers. The audience acts as an abrasive which serves to polish the performance of a master.

The live performance is a medium which receives less and less support in this age of great convenience. But it is a medium which is by far superior to all others. Only here can the watcher actually feel, respond actively, and more fully appreciate the mastery he is witnessing.

Hello again my little chickadees. This week, I think that you will find the Bird's words a great deal easier than those of last week. Let's take a look at the answer's shall we?

The "egg-head" group, who follows my column should have had: A.3, B.1, C.5, D.2, and E.4, as their answers. If they didn't, there is always room for them to improve in later weeks.

Sticks And Stones

"Since school opened, the Student Council has labored tirelessly and effectively on the behalf of the student body at large." This writer made the above statement in last week's tirade on the existing attitude of the students of Loyola College. Now he wonders if he hadn't contracted some of W.H.H.'s hoof-in-mouth disease, especially in view of the Council's latest bombshells.

The current blunders of which we are speaking pertain to the passage of; a bill prohibiting a parking space on Millbrook Road, from Cold Spring Lane to the fire hydrant north of the Student Union Building to all students who are not members of the Senior class under pain of a $1.00 fine, and a similarly ridiculous motion which calls for the establishment of a student-run Rathskeller in Loyola's Xavier Lounge.

With reference to the first of these blunders, time nor the scope of the Greyhound will not permit me to elaborate fully. Much can be said concerning the problem of the right of a campus organization to prohibit under penalty of fine, parking on a public road; the problem of ticketing visitors to our campus; the justice to the underclassmen and the general enforcement of the measure.

The more important issue to consider is their failure to consult with their constituents in the matter. A vote on this issue was held off for an entire week so that the members would have time to do their duty. But do it, they did not!!!

The second motion showed the same bad taste as the first, and was made even more of a farce by the fact that it was allowed to pass without a dissenting vote. Both of these motions showed us the reason why the students usually disregard the business of the council as a sham. Small wonder that they are so unimpressive as a governing body when they do not have the common sense to greet the Administration with a sensible document.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

By Tom Kenney

How many times has it been said that, in sports, you just can't make predictions with any reasonable hope of accuracy? Still, year after year, hundreds of "experts" put their feet in their mouths and waste thousands of tons of good paper in erroneously predicting the outcome of future sporting events.

A good example of the futility of prediction can be found right here at Loyola. Earlier in the year, this writer evaluated the Hound soccer and cross-country teams. Now, with the soccer and harrier schedules a bit past the halfway mark, it appears that the two teams have run rather contrary to their pre-season evaluation. The soccer squad looked pretty good on paper. Although not of championship quality, it was a solid looking team, with good young prospects and a nucleus of veterans. Suffice it to say that the prediction didn't turn out. Our soccer men have simply had a bad season and it is difficult to put a finger on the exact trouble.

The cross-country team, on the other hand, has a 3-1-1 record and is favored (a prediction!) to take its final two dual meets. Although the harriers didn't really look weak in pre-season speculation, no one figured that they would have as good a year as they have put together thus far.

Well, the moral of the story is, "don't make predictions"--unless, like the annual "experts," you're positive that they will turn out correctly.

Hound Hoopsters Look For Improved Season

Despite the lack of height and game experience, the Greyhound basketball team is looking forward to a prosperous and prolific season. Senior Tony Torba has taken over as the team captain and he, along with 6' 4" Tony Rivezzo, will attempt to fill the rebounding gap left by the graduation of Ed Murn. Sophomore Alex Cummings has the scoring potential to fill the shoes of the Hounds' chief pointmaker of last year, John Heagney, who also has graduated. Charlie O'Donnell will work in the backcourt along with the versatile Jody Satterfield, who may see action in other positions also. Senior George Yurek will also see a good deal of action this season as will Don Wallenhorst who appeared on the scene in the latter part of the 60-61 season. If Steve Bogusky can trim down a little, he will undoubtedly show the form that he has exhibited in the past.

Sports Shorts

On Friday, Oct. 20th, the Hound R.O.T.C. rifle team won the closest match ever fired by a Loyola squad. Both Loyola and its opponent, Dickinson College, of Carlisle Pa., finished with total scores of 1344 points. However, under National Rifle Association rules, the Greyhounds won since they had a 417 total as opposed to Dickinson's 389 in the rounds fired from the standing position.

Season Tickets

Watch the Greyhound sports page for the upcoming announcements as to when basketball season tickets will be available.

Pipe is the trademark of Hound swimming coach, Bill Klarner.

Meet The Coach

This season marks Bill Klarner's twelfth as the Hounds' swimming coach. During his tenure at the mermen's helm, Loyola has won six Mason-Dixon swimming titles, including last year's thrilling one point victory over American University in the Conference finals.

Loyola Grad

Born in Washington D.C., Bill came to Baltimore in time to attend City. At the 33rd St. school, he starred both on the gridiron and in the pool. In 1947, he entered Loyola College and graduated in 1950 due to the accelerated program in effect during those years. However the coach made the most of his abbreviated stay. He was a consistent performer for the Hound aquatic forces and, during his senior year, captured the Mason-Dixon indoor and outdoor titles in the 200 yd. breast-stroke.

High Hopes

The coach has high hopes for this season's swimming squad, the current Conference champs. With the addition of a few freestylers, the Greyhound swimmers and coach appear to be set for another fine year.

Harriers In Final Meets; Booters Oppose Bluejays

With the hope of extending their 3-1-1 M-D record, the Loyola harriers have been using their two week "rest" from conference competition to gird themselves for the hectic schedule and frigid weather of late October and November Cross-country meets.

Practice-Practice

In the last week and a half the Hounds have had two practice meets. The first was against one of the better high school squads--Mt. St. Josephs. The high schoolers, led by their M.S.A. flash Terry O'Keefe, turned in a good, although losing effort against our more seasoned runners. The race, run over a shortened two mile (approximately) course, forced a step-up in the Greyhound's usual pace, and thus pushed them to a good hard effort! This was an excellent practice session.

This past week Mac's men found themselves pitted against the Morgan State, Bears. Results from this meet are not in as yet, but the outcome may be surprising.

With the resumption of our M-D schedule next week, the Hounds have two home meets in two days. On Tuesday, October 31st, they meet the Johns Hopkins' Blue Jays. Last season the Hounds fell prey to the Jays, 21-40. However, judging by their comparative performances so far this season, the Hounds are rated as slight favorites.

The next day--Wednesday, Nov. 1st, Loyola plays host to visitors from Washington College of Chestertown. The Hounds hope to repeat last season's 20-41 rout of the Sho-men.

Booters Drop Sixth

The Greyhound booters travelled to Westminster last Saturday and engaged the Green Terrors of Western Maryland College in a driving rain storm. Before the afternoon was over, the weather was not the only dismal thing as Loyola went down to its sixth straight defeat. After a scoreless first quarter, the Green Terrors kicked in two quick goals in the second stanza. The Greyhounds came right back in the third quarter when Dennis Grabowski chipped in his second goal of the season. The score remained 2 to 1, Western Maryland's favor, until late in the fourth quarter when the Green Terrors broke the game open with three successive goals to take the game by a 5 to 1 count.

Play Hopkins

Despite the bad weather, the soccer team played one of their better games of the season. Tomorrow they go to Homewood to play Johns Hopkins and next Wednesday the booters will play Washington College of Chestertown at Evergreen.

Intramural Items

The Debits and the Hamilton Rek have jumped to the early lead in the Intramural Touch Football League with a 2 wins, 0 losses record. Both of these teams gained victories in last Friday's play. The Debits beat the Hotshots with a touchdown in the final minutes. O'Keefe threw a short pass to Zdenek for the only score of the game.

After spotting the Hawks a safety, the Hamilton Rek came back with two touchdowns in the second half. Joe Ray scored on a 54-yard run and on a 20-yard pass from Joe Enoch to clinch the victory.

Other Games

In the games last Wednesday, the Foul Beagles defeated the 1.5's by a score of 6 to 0 on a long run. The Dukes, the top seeded team, beat the Sharks 20 to 7. Brown passed to Shroeder, Stump, and Hickey for the touchdowns, and to Zubrowski for the extra point. At the present time, the Dukes, the Debits, and the Hamilton Rek look like the teams to watch in the remainder of the race.

Bowling Results

Willie's Nemes continues to lead the Bowling League after 3 weeks of competition, with a 7 win 2 loss record. The team is made up of: Beper, Morrissey, Caruson, Koch, and Nemecek. Sam and Friends are holding down the second position with a 5 and 2 record.

Ken Freimuth paced Hound swimmers in scoring last season.
